DIVING, EXCURSIONS AND WATERSPORTS AT FINOLHU

Nowhere on Earth is the sea as captivating as it is here, lapping at the shores of Finolhu. The breathtaking waters of the Indian Ocean surrounding this pristine island offer endless opportunities to discover and explore a magnificent underwater world that lies beneath the glittering surface. The environment is so rich in marine life that the area was designated a UNESCO World Heritage site in 2011, largely due to the population of majestic Manta Rays that visit Hanifaru Bay during the southwest monsoon (usually between May and November).

Our Diving and Excursions Centre is the epicenter for a wide selection of water-based activities including remarkable excursions, an incredible marine biology program, adrenaline-fueled watersports, dazzling diving, otherworldly free diving, and private boat charters, enabling you to enjoy the endless shades of blue around Finolhu. Whether you prefer to stay above the waterline or plunge into the deep blue, we offer a range of facilities and excursions under a collective roof for your convenience.

PERSONALISATION OF ACTIVITIES

All of the following experiences, trips and activities can also be tailored for private excursions. At Finolhu we aim to make the extraordinary requests a reality – there is truly no limit to the type of excursion you can dream up. Let your mind run wild; if it is possible, we are committed to making it happen. Imagine, for instance, you would like to spend the day snorkeling, fishing and absorbing culture at a local island, finishing off by sailing into the sunset with a glass of champagne as dolphins play in your wake – it is all possible.

Any of the excursions can be combined to create your own personal experience, completely customizable to suit your desires. Whatever you want, however you want, whenever you want – enquire with us to turn your dream into a bespoke experience, and let us assist you with planning and choosing a boat.

Checking-In

Check-in for all scuba diving related activities may be completed between 8.30am and 6pm daily resort time. Our multilingual team is available to assist with any questions you might have, and is always happy to advise on all relevant procedures for signing up.

To assist with check-in for certified divers, we kindly request that you bring your diving certification card, logbook and any relevant diving medical paperwork with you. If you have forgotten your diving certification and the qualification is held with SSI, PADI and NAUI, we will potentially be able to check your credentials online. If your certification is from another organisation, we will need to see either a photocopy or picture of the card itself, or an email from the training organisation's head office (not your qualifying dive centre) confirming your qualification. Please kindly note that we need to receive this confirmation prior to any guided dive activities as per the Maldivian Diving Regulations, and to ensure your safety.

PADI Entry-Level Diving Courses

Our entry-level PADI scuba diving courses are available in various languages. All courses require participants to complete a medical statement confirming they are fit to dive, and if there are any 'Yes' answers to any of the medical questions, please note that a medical certificate stating you are fit to dive is mandatory prior to participating in any in-water diving activities. The minimum age for all scuba-related activities is 8 years old (5 years old for SASY), and divers under 18 years old must have a parent or guardian sign and complete the relevant forms.

FREEDIVING

What is freediving? This form of diving, sometimes known as apnea, consists of submerging underwater without the assistance of an external air source, and has an ancient heritage. It is the same way that humans have dived underwater for millennia, long before the invention of scuba. For thousands of years, freediving was used for gathering food and other resources such as pearls, sponges and corals. In the 60's freediving pioneers, like Enzo Maiorca and Jacques Mayol, starting competing against each other on depth and duration, and this marked the beginning of modern competitive freediving.

Freediving has many benefits and promotes health, fitness and wellbeing. It allows you to come closer to marine life, gliding weightlessly beside the reef without scaring creatures away with your bubbles; freediving is also coveted for its' internal experience as a means of learning about and challenging your body.

Introduction to Freediving (2hrs) - You can try your hand at freediving before signing up for certification with our Basic Freediver Course. Under the guidance of our expert Freediving Instructor, you will learn some theory basics, trial the equipment and plunge into the deep to apply your newfound skills.

MARINE BIOLOGY

Our resident Marine Biologist offers unsurpassable insight into the incredible Biosphere Reserve in which Finolhu is located. All marine biologist-led activities are designed to help further the understanding of some of the key features of this complex eco-system, allowing you to appreciate the uniqueness of your choice of destination, and why it is so vital that we protect it. Our marine biology program offers a strong focus on citizen science and an open sharing platform, so that various organisations such as Marine Megafauna, the Olive Ridley Project, Parley and Manta Trust can contribute and partake in our conservation efforts. This is the perfect complement to our 'Visiting Heroes' program, who are hosted regularly at Finolhu, and everything ties in to the overall sustainability and conservation efforts of the resort management.

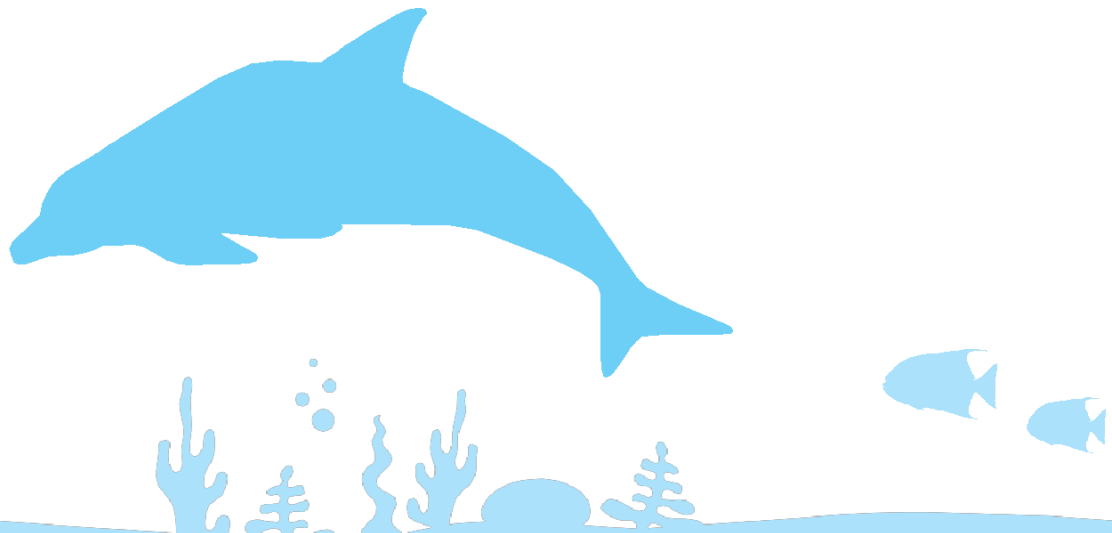

Our guests can learn about the ocean, experience the coral reef and participate in ongoing research to personally make a difference to our fragile environment. We currently contribute to MantaMatcher, an online global database revolutionizing research on these threatened rays by means of public involvement. Our Manta Ray excursion involves an in-depth briefing about these majestic animals and an introduction on how to contribute to our ongoing Manta ID database.

Another focus of the marine biology program is turtles. We collaborate with TurtleWatch and the Olive Ridley Project, open platforms focused on turtle research across the Maldives.
